THANKS

To all who entered, especially the 41 who rode.

With these Monmouthshire courses on the A40, times seem quicker with a south west wind, whereas the opposite direction (from the north east) is generally not good. The 5 mph north easterly forecast for Raglan this Saturday didn't look promising, but the actual conditions - of light catspaws with no discernible direction - pulled PB's for half the field including all but one of the top 10. It seems the first lap was particularly fast. There were no improvements to men's or women's course records however.

As a two-lap course, official split times come from the finish lay-by near the end of the first lap (24.275 miles), and unofficial splits from our observer at the Mitchel Troy turn (12.08 and 37.831 miles) who didn't sync his watch with the TK's, but whose times should be accurate relative to themselves. There are separate PDF files for Finish times, split times at 24.275 miles, split times at Mitchell Troy, and Team awards.

For several contenders it turned out a promising start to this year's BBAR after all.

I was pleased with the response to the road bike event, where there was a uniformly high standard of performance - including no.24 who used a road bike in the TT bike event.
